

I urge you to reject the Consumer Banking Association's request to overturn Wisconsin's laws regarding telemarketing. It comes down to this: I can eat dinner with my family in peace. I can answer the phone knowing it's not a waste of my time. Leave Wisconsin's law alone!

I am very frustrated that the FCC Chairman has invited an industry group to challenge this law, when clearly the people of Wisconsin have both fully endorsed and widely used the list. His action is contrary to democratic principles. The industry is already allowed one call to former customers. That's enough. If I say "no" once, I DO NOT want another call or calls!
